WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16, 1894.
It is not possible to even make an intelligent guess at how long the Senate will take to go through the tariff bill, as every schedule in it will be bitterly attacked by the Republicans and many of them by Democratic Senators. Senator Smith, of New Jersey, made it plain in his speech to-day that he stands very nearly, if not quite, upon the same tariff platform as Senator Hill. However, it is by no means certain that either one of them, or of the other Democratic Senators who are known to be opposed to portions of the bill, will in the end vote against it. Many believe that it is the amendment of the bill, not its defeat, that they are working for, and that whether they succeed or not they will on the final vote support the bill whatever its condition may then be. Several prominent Republican Senators have privately expressed their opinion.
Representative Brinkley's attempt to get vindication from a Washington jury was an ignominious failure. The jury rendered a verdict in Miss Pollard's favor, awarding her $15,000 for damages. It is generally believed here that the verdict is all she will get, as it is understood that Col. Brinkley has no property that she can get at. The people of Washington have not taken sides with Miss Pollard in this case, although the sentiment against Col. Brinkley has been intense and the verdict is generally endorsed. Col. Brinkley says he has been treated unfairly by the public, and reiterates his determination to make a fight to be returned to Congress, and, it is said, instead of taking his seat in the House, will in a few days go to Kentucky and begin a personal canvass of his district, seeking vindication from his constituents.
Senator Peffer's position on the tariff bill is thus, in a nutshell, summed up by himself: "I am opposed to the bill now before us, because it discriminates against the people I represent; because it removes the duty from the farmer's wool while retaining it on the manufacturer's cloth; and because, while I favor the income tax as a good step in the right direction, this bill does not go far enough. The bill, taken as a whole, I do not regard as an improvement on the law now in force, and as to wool and sugar it is much worse." And Mr. Peffer very truly and significantly added: "How many votes will be cast when the bill is put upon its passage will depend on what changes are made in the meantime."
Senator Hill's tariff speech easily double discounts any speech yet made on the subject, so far as circulation is concerned. Requests are being received from all sections for copies of the speech and it is being sent out by thousands. Whether this demand is caused by curiosity or by endorsement of the sentiments uttered by Senator Hill is more than any one in Washington can truthfully undertake to say, but that it is pleasing to Senator Hill and displeasing to the Administration Democrats, is evident. Senator Mills has been, it is reported, selected to make a specific reply to Hill's speech. If it is made it will probably be very bitter, as there has been bad blood between the two men ever since Hill denounced Mills in the Democratic caucus at which the revision of the tariff bill was ordered.
Senator Vance of North Carolina died suddenly at his home here Saturday night from a stroke of apoplexy.
The decision of the Democratic caucus to count a quorum in the House was not a surprise to close observers of things in that body, notwithstanding repeated assertions of prominent Democrats, including Speaker Crisp, that they would never do such a thing. Everything has tended that way since the regular session began. Ex-Speaker Reed and the Republicans have made no secret of their desire to force the counting of a quorum if possible, and the number of Democrats who openly advocated such a step has constantly increased as the necessity became more urgent, and the virtual tie-up which has been on for more than three weeks, with the exception of two or three hours, was the last straw. Something had to be done or else the majority must confess to the country its inability to carry on the public business. That something was the action of the caucus authorizing the Committee on Rules to prepare a rule for the counting of a quorum and to compel the attendance of members. The Democrats are, of course, taunted by their opponents, who charge them with having surrendered. It is the general opinion, however, that the Democrats have done the best thing they could under the circumstances. They cannot be taunted any more than they have been for their inability to do business because of their failure to keep a quorum of their own. Now, as an offset to the taunts, they at least have the satisfaction of being able to do business without first obtaining the consent of the minority.

Garden Theatre.

That vital and vivacious burlesque, Rice's "1492," at the Garden Theatre has gained great impetus from the introduction of Kilanyi living pictures. Kilanyi has offered New York a novelty and a sensation and everybody is flocking to see the charming and artistic art examples. By the time they come on, at 10:15, the house is always packed and every foot of standing-room space occupied. The living reproductions of paintings and statuary are undeniably beautiful and artistic and the changes are made with bewildering precision and rapidity. A series of twenty-two pictures has been prepared, but two or three of the originals, like "Psyche at the Well" and "Aphrodite," are so popular that they will be retained. The burlesque itself was never so gay and inviting as now. It is always up to date. Walter Jones, as the tramp, has introduced an amusing travesty upon Corey and his army, and Edward Favors' topical song "Shall we ever be able to fly" is always good for a dozen encores. The souvenir for the 300th performance next Monday night will be the biggest thing of its kind known since the famous Dixie statuettes. It is a mammoth group of five figures, in terracotta, designed by D. B. Sheehan, the sculptor, representing the royal family of Spain, and upon the base are medallions of Columbus and Messrs. E. E. Rice and A. M. Palmer. The statuettes are too bulky to handle on the evening of the performance and will be given out from a distribution station at any time next week, upon presentation of a special coupon. While "1492" continues at the Garden, Mr. Rice will have another burlesque at Palmer's commencing May 7th the famous "Adonis," brought up to date, by Henry E. Dixey and Rice's Big Burlesque Company.

The local committee are planning to make the teachers' visit at Asbury Park one of the pleasantest events of their lives. The programme of the association meeting will be made up of addresses and lectures by men and women of national renown as educators and orators.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr. Theo. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at Geo. M. Wood's Drug Store, Regular size 50c. and $1.00.—Advt.

Chosen Freeholders.

The bill providing for the election of boards of chosen freeholders has been passed by the Legislature. It provides that there shall be appointed by the Mayors of Newark and Jersey City, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, one freeholder from each ward in those cities.

The appointee must be of the political party that cast the highest number of votes in the ward at the last charter election.

From cities of the second class, like Orange, for instance, there shall be two freeholders appointed by the mayor of the city affected. There shall be two freeholders from townships that at the last federal census had a population of 12,000, and the appointments shall be made by the chairman of township committees.

Townships that have less than a population of 12,000 are to have one freeholder each, to be appointed by the chairman of the township committee. In Democratic townships the freeholders will be Democratic, and in Republican townships Republican.

The term of office will be one year, beginning on the seventh of next month. After the expiration of the first year of service the freeholders are to be elected by the people, and for periods of one year. The salary is to be $500 each.

The director of the board, who is to be chosen by the board, will be paid $1,000 a year.

The new board is to organize on the first Wednesday after the first Monday. All vacancies are to be filled by the mayor or chairman of the township committee, as the case may be.

The terms of all present freeholders are to expire on May 7, and all officers appointed by the present boards are to cease on May 14, no matter for how long a term they were appointed.

At the Empire Theatre.

"Sowing the Wind" has now been sixteen weeks at the Empire Theatre, and the crowds there are larger than ever. It will run until the middle of May, and the indications are that it will be withdrawn at the very height of its success. The Breckinridge case in Washington where Miss Madeline Pollard is suing the Kentucky Congressman for $20,000 for breach of promise, has renewed interest to the "sex against sex" question which Sydney Gray is treated with such power and success in his successful play; there is a wide difference, however, between the Washington case and "Sowing the Wind" story. In the play sin occupies a vague and misty place in the background, and its offensiveness is offset by the pictorial richness with which the dramatist dresses the piece and the pure and holy type of young woman selected for the heroine. The young woman is persecuted, and an attempt is made to punish her by separating her from the man she loves, on account of her mother's sin. The "sex against sex" duel is bravely and splendidly fought between her and the adoptive father of her affianced husband. It all ends happily, for the man who is opposing her turns out to be her father, and he quickly sees the injustice of his course. "Sowing the Wind" is not only pretty to look upon, for its costumes and scenery are wonderfully clever combinations of colors, but it is an intellectual treat, being charmingly written. Manager Chas. Frohman pronounces it the greatest dramatic success of his career. It is the biggest success the Empire Theatre has yet had.

At Palmer's Theatre.

John Drew in the pretty American comedy "The Butterflies" shares fashionable attention with "Sowing the Wind." Mr. Drew is an actor who readily adapts himself to the work he has in hand, and as the hero of this charming comedy he passes from the gay and airy to the sweetly sentimental and again soberly earnest with the ease and grace of a master. He is delightfully aided in the love scenes by Maud Adams, whose dainty and exquisite acting is always admired. "The Butterflies" has crowded houses all along. Its run at Palmer's Theatre ends with this month.

Standard Theatre.

"Charley's Aunt," after a run of nine months at the Standard Theatre, New York, will leave there April 28 and go to Chicago April 30, to begin a five weeks' run. This comedy is the funniest ever written and its success is of tremendous proportions. Not a seat has been vacant in the house at any performance since the run began. It is now in its fifth month in Boston, where it will remain until the middle of summer.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J.
